

Brief server outage

There was a brief outage at about 7:30 pm this evening.

There was a problem with the main linux server which required it to be rebooted. This took approximately 20 minutes, during which time web sites and email would have been unavailable. Mail that was being delivered during that time would have been spooled to the secondary mail server and may be slightly delayed.

Apologies for any inconvenience!