

Scheduled outage on main linux server

There will be a brief outage sometime over the next couple of days while the RAM is upgraded in the main linux server.

This will cause all services on this machine to become unavailable for a short period of time. This includes email for Windows hosting customers.

We have requested that the upgrade be carried out at some time between 1am and 7am. We apologise in advance for any inconvenience caused.